Our work on social care data

- Provision of care and stability of care home markets
- Unpaid Carers
- Self-funders – collaboration with the ONS
- Social care data finder
- Collaboration with the Health Foundation

The Community of Practice

Bringing together data analysts, researchers, policy-makers and other practitioners from across the private, public and charitable sector, as well as people with lived experience of social care with the aim of sharing ideas, building links and exchanging good practice.

- Improve the quality of care for cohorts of people that are experiencing the worst outcomes
- Build a safe and resilient workforce
- Understand the lived experience of people needing social care

Community development

- Identifying data gaps and examples of good practice
- Resources (blogs and other content) and links to events are hosted on the community webpage
- Discussion forum to facilitate conversation and networking
- FCC and the Health Foundation will be linking with the community in relation to social care projects – but community ultimately driven by members

Community activity

- Development of independent community leadership team
- Co-production of norms around how data can and should be used within social care: developing a vision and set of problem statements that set out what good social care data analytics look like
- Agreeing a set of priorities that describe how people who work in social care data, or have an interest in it, could work together to achieve the vision for better social care analytics
- Virtual events for community members

Join the community

- be part of a network with others working in the field,
- learn from other practitioners who face similar challenges in their day-to-day work,
- understand the needs of people with lived experience of social care and how these may be best reflected and captured through analytics,
- share experiences in an interactive online forum and at peer-led events,
- contribute to improving data analytics in social care
